Germany's Castles

N ARTICLE in the current Munsey tells of Emperor William's restoration of ancient castles in Germany. It seems to us most natural, for every one is a link in that history which traces Germany up from a race of more than half wild men to the creation of the modern home. It is just the history that the German people ought to all make themselves familiar with, and in studying it, those old castles stand out as signal stations along the way. Our country is too young to quite appreciate all that must be in the minds of the Kaiser as he pursues the work, and yet it would be a shock to all Americans to hear of the destruction of a few simple, old structures which held the men, who kindled the fires of the revolution and framed our government, and that was less than one hundred and forty years ago, while Germany had rounded into a nation sixteen hundred years ago. The Empress of Germany has a passion for building churches, which is all right, but the thought of the Emperor holds within the purpose of making every German a devoted patriot by linking him with all the triumphs and defeats through which rounded modern Germany into form. And the very highest triumph which the German peopie ever wrought was their triumph over themselves, in beating back the barbarism of the forefathers, learning to subdue themselves, inspired them to fashion a code and submit to it, and then to advance in art and literature, in arms and ir industry to the forefront of continental Europe. Those old castles are steps in the stairs up which Germany has climbed, and the thought of the Kaiser to perpetuate them is

MR. BRYAN

By 1'od Goodwin.

(With excuses to Mr. Hovey.)

Bryan, my boy, it's the end of Democracy, From Bangor in Maine to the Utah theocracy. Back to the timothy, let the plutocracy Steer the State ship from the sea to the sea, Clawed by the Tammany 'Iger of tyranny, Still from this distance, you do not appear any Worse for the wear, and we don't think you fear

Other will take your place, William J. B.

Four years you'll agitate, Then you'll articulate Also capitulate, You will agree, You'll not epitomize, Never will temporize, But always dogmatize, William J. B.

Like a big blanket surcharged with humidity, White and as cold as the Arctic frigidity, Ballots came down and your only solidity Was in the zone of the Palmetto tree. Gr 1 night to your fads, your foibles and fables,

Ain't it just awfully awful for Mabel, sir? Kindly explain this as soon as you're able, sir, Which end of the glasses Mack looked through to

Your superiority, So a minority Looked a majority-Tell it to me. Now for prosperity, Don't doubt my verity, In all sincerity, William J. B.

William J. B., here's a toast to the fight you made, Game as a wolf, but outgeneraled in plans you

Three rousing cheers for the brave length of time you stayed

Spreading philippics, and spreading them free. So while we are sipping our Clicquot or Chablis, We with the rest of the commoner rabble he Treated to yarns in the fine line of gabble he Always excels in, we'll lift one to B. Whose near elevation Just missed laureation By those of the nation Accepting his plea Backed with virility

And a facility Proving ability, William J. B.

Old Gent-Here, you boy, what are you doing out here, fishing? Don't you know you ought to be at school?

Small Boy-There, now! I knew I'd forgot something.-Philadelphia Inquirer.

Louis Hendricks, as The Boss, in "The Map of The Hour".

Reckmeyer

Has established the fact that a stylish hat can be had without paying a fancy price.

There's no necessity for paying absurd prices for your millinery when you can choose from the beautiful assortment on display at Reckmeyer's at prices within reason. Creations that will surprise and delight the feminine eye are seen in a great variety of exclusive patterns at Reckmeyer's -- the store that now enjoys a patronage earned by close attention to the wants of women who insist on distinct attire.

In a Reckmeyer hat there is everything to appeal to those who know how to dress well.

Reckmeyer 41 E. First South

Kneipp Linen Underwear

for Men

Guaranteed to wear. Made of pure linen. The best underwear for health---best for durability.

In our "Men's Corner"